The church of St Michael's was opened in 1856 to promote and revive Anglican Church Music under the guidance of Sir Frederick Ouseley. This it did for 129 years until the college's closure in 1985 when it continued to be the parish church for the small parish of St Michael's. It is now part of the Tenbury Team Ministry which has some 12 churches in the counties of Herefordshire, Worcestershire and Shropshire, all within the Diocese of Hereford.

The Ouseley Trust, now known as The Ouseley Church Music Trust, was set up following the college closure as a charity to support music making in cathedrals, major parish churches and colleges in the United Kingdom. It continues to support the church and in turn the PCC promotes music making of the kind Ouseley intended as well as other community events, making the church a lively place. You will find this range of music making in this year's programme.

The PCC gratefully thank the following for support in the maintenance of this historic building and organ:

The Ouseley Church Music Trust Laslett's Charity
The St Michaels' College Society The Burford Trust
Maureen Swindells St Michaels Singers
